BRYAN'S VOICE GIVES OUT.

LINCOLN, Neb., Nov. 7 .- Mr. Bryan is having paired, but since he has ceased speechmaking it has grown steadily hoarser and hoarser, and all the usual remedies have done little good. His physicians say that the overexertion of his vocal chords in the three months' campaign has caused a swelling that may not be reduced for several weeks. Mr. Bryan is sure that the rest he proposes to take will bring his voice back, and is already making arrangements for a tour of the West that will partake somewhat of the nature of a triumphal fourney. He has not definitely outlined his plans, and said to-day that he had received a number of invitations to visit various cities and States that had given him enthusiastic support. He will make no definite arrangements until he is rested thor-

Mr. Bryan looks five years older than when he began the campaign. There are lines on the forehead that were not there when he was first nominated. His expression is graver, and there is not the boyish dash and hopefulness that haracterized the man who swayed the Chicago Convention.

Within the next ten days Mr. Bryan expects to go to Colorado, and if his voice allows he will make a few speeches in that State. It is generally understood that he expects to take to the lecture platform, and that his addresses will not be of a character that will take him out of the list of candidates in 1500.

Mr. Bryan has received a number of offers for a lecture tour from various men, but he declined to give them out for publication. In his ondeavors to make up for lost sleep Mr. Bryan now retires early and rises late. His mail, which at one time necessitated the meaistance of three secretaries to handle, but which was much reduced during the latter but which was much reduced during the latter part of the campaign, is growing large again. Telegrams, too, have been pouring in upon him, but names of national prominence are few and far between. The great majority of his correspondents bewail the defeat of the cause tell him to be of good cheer, and enthusiastically e-dorse him for President in 1900. He is called the great commoner of the day, the Moses appeared to deliver the common people from the bondage of the money changers, the Henry Clay, the Andrew Jackson, the Thomas Jefferson, & ... of the age. Some of the letters breathe of disappointed hopes, but none ask for plotges in 1900. Mr. Bryan spends most of his time about the house, reading the newspathers or his correspondence, dictating replies, and entertaining visitors.

The ex-candidate is the idol of many women in Lincoln, and much of his afternoons is taken up receiving the condolences of these admirers. He has nothing to say for publication at present beyond the statement given out yesterpresent beyond the statement given out yester-day, but may have something further to com-municate when he has had time to learn what causes operated to overturn Popocratic hopes in the middle West, where the managers believed they had an even chance. Republican leaders in Nebraska have not yet recovered from the severe trouncing they received at the hands of the Bryanites, but not yet recovered from the severe trouncing they received at the hands of the Bryanites, but their newspapers are saying many severe things about the men who wore McKinley badges and sound-money ribbons, but who voted for Bryan.

Returns have been received from all but three small counties, and they give Bryan 112,208, McKinley 100,422, or a majority of 11840, Holcomb, Pop., for Governur, beats MacColl, Rep., over 20,000. The returns show that the Republicans lost heavily in Republican counties, and the Fusionists greatly increased their vote in their old strongbolds. An analysis of the vote shows that Bryan received the greater part of the reilroad vote in Nebraska and that the farmers stood by him stronger than ever. The Legislature will stand: Senate, Fusionists, 32; Republicans, 38. The official count completed to-day insures the election of Stood, Rep., to Congress in the First district by 42 votes.

Mr. Bryan to-night gave out the following elegram, addressed to the bimetallists of the seatern States;

telegram, addressed to the bimetallists of the eastern States:

"In the hour of our defeat I send you greetings. No words of praise can sufficiently common the send you. When it is remembered that the Engrey States sent gold delegates to both Conventions and that hearly all the Eastern papers were against bimetallism, your light appears remarkably treditable. You have shown yourselves heroic, and events will vindicate the position you have taken. Continue the fight."

Views of London Financial Papers on McKinley's Election.

LONDON, Nov. 7. - The Economist says: Though charing the general satisfaction at the triumph of McKinley, we cannot but feel that too optimistic views are taken of the realyzed business has suffered defeat, but a mere popular pronouncement will not suffice to place the currency upon a sound basis. oming McKinley Administration, if it takes the right course, will gradually redeem its notes and leave the supply and regulation of the paper currency to the banks, whose function it pre properly is. It is easier to urge this course of action than to devise means; still, the diffi-culties are not insuperable. Mr. McKinley is more favorably situated to overcome them than more favorably situated the Economist says that his predecessors."

In regard to the tariff the Economist says that no sanguine hopes ought to be indulged in a great and immediate expansion of exports to great and immediate expansion of exports to America.

The Statist says: "Now that the position is rectified, Europe will be disposed to invest in the United States the capital it has withdrawn within the past few years owing to fears, and currency will begin to flow back. Still, there is no immediate prospect of the return of the large amount of gold sent to the United States. November is the great exporting month of the year, and the balance of trade is larger than that of any other month. The pace at which capital will return to the United States may be slow, but it will steadily increase with the cessation of disturbing factors and as fresh openfings develop for the profitable employment of money."

ONE BRYAN VOTE IN DELAWARE.

Mistake in the Ballots Gives One Elector to the Pepcerats.

WILMINGTON, Del., Nov. 7.—The count of the Mercer of Nebraska, Secretary of the Republithat Bryan will have one elector and McKinley two. John H. Rodner, who received the highest vote of three Popocratic electors, defeats
James H. Shaw, the lowest Republican elector, by 6,313 votes. This condition of affairs is the result of the two tickets used by the Republicans, which had a difference in the printed name of Elector Shaw. Some of the tickets had the name "James G. Shaw" and others "James G. Shaw, Sr." Following is the vote of the three counties for Shaw, Shaw, Sr., and Rodney.

FREAK ELECTION BET. A Milwaukee Young Man to Leave the Country and Keep His Wager.

MILWAUKER, Wis., Nov. 7.-There will be a decrease of one in the population as the result of the election. Fred Burke, a local newspaper man, some months ago agreed to leave the country in the event of McKinley's election. Frank Donaldson, with whom he made the strange wager, called on Mr. Burke yesterday and reminded him of his agreement in the matter. It was agreed at the time the wager was made that the lorer should have until Jan. 1.

1897, to arrange his affairs. Speaking of his wager yesterday, Mr. Burke sain:
"I intend to carry it out to the letter, and shall leave Milwaukee on Jan. 1. Mr. Donaldson, with whom I made the wager, is one of my best friends, and we intend to travel from this city to New Orieans by carriage. From there I will take a boat and leave the country. I have not determined where I shall go as yet, but probably to one of the South American countries."

McKinley's Plurality in California 4,500 Ban Francisco, Nov. 7.-Few missing presincts were heard from yesterday, and Califorpia's electoral vote seems practically un changed, McKiniey's plurality now standing at 4.631. In the Sixth Congress district Barlow, Fusion, has a majority of $5 over McLaughlin, Rep., with one precinct to hear from. With thisteen missing precincts, in which the Democrats claim tan advantage, in the Saventh district, Castle, Fusion, leads Bowers, Rep., by 133. The complexion of the Legislature is unchanged. A BLAST FROM THE POPS.

Butler Says It Was the Prejudice Against the Democratic Name That Defeated Bryan. WASHINGTON, Nov. 7.-Senator Marion Butler, Chairman of the National Committee of the People's party, to-day issued the following statement:

To the I copie of the United States: "In the remarkable campaign just closed the People's party was the only party that supported, solidly and unitedly, the great and vital issues represented in the candidacy of Mr. Bryan. This was natural, for the People's party came into existence to bring to the front and to press to victory the principles of Lincoln and Jefferson, aiready long discarded by the two old parties. The money power, feeling reasonably aure of its control and domination of the leaders and the controlling influences in the Republican party, in 1892 gave its support to the candidacy of Grover Cleveland for the especial purpose of having him, through the use of patronage and otherwise, to crush out the silver sentiment in the South and make the leaders in that party as completely subservient as those in the Republican party. To accomplish this purpose four Cabinet Ministers were selected from the South and an unusually large amount of patronage used on political leaders to the same end. It will be remembered that Mr. Cleveland demanded that the Democratic enators and Congressmen give a decisive vote in the interests of the gold standard before he vould even give out the Post Offices.

"This deep-laid plan might have succeeded had not the People's party at this juncture republic and restore prosperity to an oppressed and outraged people."

SLOW ON AN EXTRA SESSION.

Senator McMillan Says the Wilson Tariff Must Be Tried Awhile, DETROIT, Mich., Nov. 7 .- Senator McMillan, an interview to-day in regard to Mr. McKinley's calling an extra session of Congress after his inauguration as President, said:

"The less Congress is in session the better. It impossible at this time to judge as to the probabilities of a special session. We want to see how that Wilson bill will operate under the new order of things. It depends on importations. If the receipts of revenues should increase afficiently to meet the expenses of the Government. I doubt whether a special session would be called. If, however, they should prove insufficient, prompt measures, I suppose, would be demanded. Republican action on tariff revision is, in the future, a subject for consultation with the 'acund-money' Democrats—a subject for consultation and compromise.

The Senator left for the East to-night.

Chairman Babcock for a Place in the Cabinet WASHINGTON, Nov. 7 .- Representative David Mercer of Nebraska, Secretary of the Republiresentative Babcock, Chairman of the Republican Campaign Committee, would be strongly endorsed for a place in the Cabinet of Presidentendorsed for a place in the Capinet of President-elect McKinley. Next to Chairman Hanna, said Mr. Mercer, Mr. Babcock had more to do with the election of Major McKinley than any one else. When the silver wave was at its height it was through his efforts that the country was flooded with sound-money literature. During the campaign some 25,000,000 sound-money documents were issued under the supervision of Chairman Babcock. Mr. Habcock refuses to Chairman Babcock. Mr. Habcock refuses to say anything on the subject of his Cabinet aspirations.

Nathan Frank for the Cabinet.

Sr. Louis, Mo., Nov. 7.-Considerable interest is manifested in this city as to the composition of Major McKinley's Cabinet and the desire that St. Louis and the Southwest be represented. A number of leading Republicans, to sented. A number of leading Republicans, to-gether with several prominent sound-money Democrats, have urged the Hon. Nathan Frank to permit his name to be presented as their choice for a Cabinet position. To a reporter of the United Associated Presses to-day Mr. Frank acknowledged that the matter had been sug-gested to him, but said that the question was too delicate to discuss at present.

Wyoming Republicans Encouraged.

CHEYENNE, Wy., Nov. 7. The Republican State Committee received encouraging news from Big Horn county to-day. The first returns from Big Horn county to-day. The first returns from that isolated region to come in were from four precincts with a combined vote of 200. They cast 52 for the Popocratic and 150 for the Republican electoral and Congress tickets. There are still 1.200 votes to be heard from in the county, and the same ratio of Republican majorities in the remaining precincts will give them the entire electoral, Congress, and State tiesets.

Lind Finally Gives Up in Minnesota, St. Paul, Minn., Nov. 7.-John Lind, Fusion candidate for Governor, yesterday afternoon sued a statement that he admitted the election of Clough for Governor by from 1,500 to 2,000. DISORDER AT CORNELL

SCRAP BETWEEN THE FRESHME

AND SOPHOMORE CLASSES. Frenhmen Hoist Their Class Fing in Pince of the cars and Stripes-Made to Brink Milk and Vinegar by Sophomores-President Schurman Warns the Sta-dente That Hazing Must Be Stopped.

ITHACA, Nov. 7.-It has been the general opinion and hope for the past two years that hazing and rushes at Cornell were over forever. There seems to be a disposition among some of the members of the class of 1990 to become intractable. This was illustrated on Thursday night, when some freshmen hoisted their class flag to the flag pole of the armory and cut the rope, which necessitated the taking down of a section of the pole to remove the flag. The expense of this was charged to the freshman class. The next night several freshmen were "milked" by some sophomores that is, fed on a concoction of vinegar and milk, which produces, as might be supposed, a seasick feeling. With a view to checking the spirit manifest, and preventing more serious developments, President Schurman addressed the members of the two classes on the subject. He said:

"GENTLEMEN OF THE SOPHOMORE AND FRESH-MEN CLASSES: This is a somewhat critical moment in the history of the university, otherwise would even give out the Post Offices.

Would even give out the Post Offices would be an extended and out the Post warty at this juncture sprung into existence, expeed the plot, stood of the breach, and appealed to the particulation of the proper of the science of the period of the proper of the science of the period of the proper of the continuous of the period of the pe I would not have come from the faculty meeting and have trespassed upon the time which by our rules is assigned to this department of the university. I presume I need say no word more you to do it. We have no sples, we have no policemen. We can only appeal to your sense of what is right, to your sense of honor, of fair play, to your love for your aims mater.

"Students have said to me within the last twenty-four hours: 'We don't mind scraps; they don't hurt anybody.' If you could have any scrap in the way you want it it might be all right, but the forces of lawlessness and disorder get beyond your control. For it was at this university only two or three years ago that such performances occurred as are now beginning, leading to the loss of life to suits in which the words murder and homicide were freedly used, and to the newspaper notoriety of ill-fame from which we have not as yet recovered. Knowing this, as you who enter the university do not know, I confidently appeal, I sincerely appeal to you to say that, so far as you are concerned, this thing will attor right here.

"Only four years ago, when I first came here, a comic paper in New York said that there was a characteristic Cornell foolery. We want to change that reputation. Let us compel them to say that a Cornell manilness has become natural to us. It is true that for the last few years you have maintained the fame and name of the university, and I thank you for it. Would you follow the same example? I confidently appeal to you, I have maintained the thing must stop right here? If the men, or handful of men, who have been enacting these things or have stirred up strife between these classes will say that. I have nothing more to ask of you. The fame of the university shall be maintained best by the students of the uni-versity. I believe it will."

Borrowe-Corbin.

Corbin, the youngest daughter of the late Austin Corbin, and H. Alson Borrowe were married at noon to-day by the Rev. H. R. Phelps of St. Stephen's Church, New York, at Christ Epis-copal Church, West Islip. Mrs. Borrowe is in mourning for her father, and Mr. Borrowe for his, and the wedding was a very quiet one. There were no bridesmaids or ushers. Mr. R. K. Borrowe, younger brother of the bridegroom was best man. The bride entered the church leading on the arm of her brother, Austin Cor-bin, ir., who gave her away. Her gown was of white corded silk. She were no ornaments and white corded silk. She wore no ornaments and carried no flowers.

After the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Borrowe drove to the Corbin country place at Babylon, where a weiding breakfast was served. Those present at the church and breakfast were: Mrs. Corbin, Anstin Corbin, Jr., Mrs. Samuel Borrowe, Mrs. Effle Beekman Borrowe, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Campbell, Miss Lizzie Day Campbell, Mr. and Mrs. George W. Campbell, Mrs. and Mrs. George W. Campbell, Mrs. and Mrs. George Carnogle Palmer, Mrs. E. Boudinot Colt, and Mrs. Stockton Beekman Colt. After the breakfast Mr. and Mrs. Borrowe went to Deer Park, a hamlet two miles north of the Corbin Villa, where a special train was in waiting to take them to Shinnecock Hills, where they will spend the honeymoon.

He Is Urged for Blackourn's Seat If Re publicans Fall to Elect. LEXINGTON, Ky., Nov. 7.-The friends of Col. W. C. P. Breckinridge are urging him to run for the United States Senate in the event that the Republicans fail to have a majority in the extra session of the Legislature which Gov Bradley will call within a few days. The Republicans elected a majority of the lower house, but Blackburn and his friends will probably devise some scheme that will disqualiy enough of the Republicans to prevent them from having a quorum and majority. They will try to prevent R. P. Stoll, who was elected from this city, from taking his seat because he is an Asylum Commissioner. The law says that no man can hold two offices at the same ime. Another Republican, Representative Leibert of Covington, has been made Chief of Police of that city, and Senator Goebel, a strong Blackburn supporter, will try to prevent him from voting for United States Senator.

The Breckinridge men say that should Sena-or Blackburn and his friends be successful in preventing a Republican majority it will be the proper thing for the Republicans and sound-money Democrats to combine and elect Breckinridge. The claims of Col. Breckinridge were presented to-night by one of his friends as follows: "Col. Breckinridge is the man who suggested were presented to night by one of his friends as follows:

"Col. Breckinridge is the man who suggested the National Democratic organization after it became apparent that the Chicago Convention was going off after anarchy. He wrote letters to William A. Singerly, the proprietor of the Philadelphia Record, and other leading sound-money Democrats in the East and West, asking their cocheration in the sound-money movement. That he was successful in this movement, which has done so much for the honor and credit of the United States, is a matter of history. Although it was known for weeks beforehand that the Republicans would put out no opposing candidate in the A-hland district, he devoted more attention to preaching the sound-money cause throughout the State than he did in his own district. Even his bitterest enemies will admit that had he not taken the active part he did and made the campaign for Congress, this district would have given Bryan 4,000 or 5,000 majority instead of 1,400.

"The county of Fayette was carried by Clevegiven Bryan 4,000 or 5,000 majority instead of 1,400.

"The county of Fayette was carried by Cleveland four years ago by 1,322, the Populist vote being 15. This year Breckinridge and McKinley carried it by 1,200. As McKinley's majority in Kentucky will be only about 500, it can be seen that had Fayette county been uninfluenced by Breckinridge Bryan would have carried the State.

"I have talked with a number of Republicans and they all concede this, and that it is a fact that Breckinridge is the ablest Democrat in the State outside of Carlisle everybody will admit."

It is stated by those in a position to know that Secretary Carlisle does not desire a reelection to the Senate. He and Col. Breckinridge have for years been close personal friends, and it is generally understood that the Secretary would feel that the beople of Kentucky fully endorse his course in the recent campaign should they elect his friend breckinridge to the Senate. Breckinridge to the Senate at daggers points for years, and the sound-money men say it would be a harder blow on Blackburn have been at daggers points for years, and the sound-money men say it would be a harder blow on Blackburn have been at degrees Breckinridge made his successor than for the next Senator to be Carlisle or a Republican.

Tennessee's Vote Still Unsettled.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Nov. 7.—The Democrats re-fuse to admit the Republican gains and their claims of carrying the State, and still say that Bryan has carried Tennessee by at least 15,000, and that eight of the ten Congressmen are Popocratic. BRECKINRIDGE FOR THE SENATE. SWINDLER'S SECRET OUT.

JOHN THOMPSON" IS OTTO F.

THOMAS OF BROOKLYN. The Mysterious Prisoner at Police Headquariers the Son of a Well-Known Rent Estate Man-Has Told All About the Gang of Forgers to Which He Belonged. The identity of "James Thompson," the local Detective Bureau's mysterious prisoner, who turned out to be one of a gang of swindlers that has been operating in this State and in the West, was more fully established yesterday. In giving out the story of the doings of the gang, Assistant District Attorneys Battle and Davis, the Pinkerton agency's detective, and the Headquarters detectives showed a disposition to shield their prisoner from publicity.

They told all about Peters, Connor, and Smith, the other members of the gang, but they insisted on their prisoner being known only as "James Thompson," the fictitious name which they used in having the man remanded from day to day in the police courts, THE SUN stated yesterday that James Thomp son was in reality William Thomas, the son of a real estate auctioneer of Broadway, Willlamsburgh. As a matter of fact, the mysterious prisoner is not William Thomas, but Otto V. Thomas, and he is a son of Henry Thomas of the firm of Ridden & Thomas, real estate auctioneers and insurance agents of 76 Broadway, Brooklyn. The young man's history is an interesting and it was because of the fact that his parents are respectable people that the authorities attempted to keep his iden-tity secret. The information that Thomas gave the District Attorney was valuable Without it Peters, the head of the gang might never have been captured, while the conviction of any of the other members of the gang might have been difficult, where it will now be easy, with the prosecutor in possession of the facts furnished by Thomas and with Thomas as a possible witness agains

Thomas, it is understood, asked nothing for himself in return for the information he gave the District Attorney, except that his real name be kept secret and his parents, who have already suffered much by his misdeeds, be saved further trouble and disgrace. It was agreed to let the man remain "James Thompson," but unfortunately for him, he was recognized in a police court as Thomas.

In Thomas's statement to the authorities he held himself up as a man who had always led a straight life, but who, being in financial straits, was tempted and fell when Connor and Peters told him of their apparently simple scheme for getting large sums of money by means of spurious drafts. It turns out, how. means of spurious drafts. It turns out, however, that Thomas was not so much a victim of circumstances as he would like to make himself appear. His life for seven years has been a succrasion of scrapes, out of all of which he has managed to crawl through the generosity of his father.

Thomas is a very good-looking man—tall, broad shouldered, with a blond mustache, blue eyes, and good manners. He is 32 years old, well educated, and, according to persons who know him well, an excellent business man when the cares to devote himself to honest pursuits, it was about twelve years are that young country.

Detective Sergeant John Cuff, who is attached to the District Attorney's office, says that Thomas was acquainted with Peters and others of the same lik three years ago. At that time Cuff and other detectives were looking for two accomplished swindlers named De Witt and Whitman of the same ilk three years ago. At that time Cuff and other detectives were looking for two accomplished swindlers named De Witt and Whitman. The Witt was a West Point graduate and Whitman a Yale man. They had been passing spurious checks and drafts in the West and were indicted in several places. The police of this city as well as those in all the other large cities in this country had been asked to look out for the men. Cuff finally located them at the Ashland House in this city. They were shadowed for days, and Cuff says that both Thomas and Peters were frequent callers on the two men. No incriminating evidence could be obtained against either of these men, however, so Cuff finally arrested De Witt and Whitman, and they were sent West. Michigan got De Witt, and he is now in jail there serving a ten years's sentence. Whitman is doing a similar term in California. Detective Cuff is positive that Peters has been working the check and draft game for years. He always took the hardest but the safest end of the game, making all of the bogus paper but never attempting to negotiate it nimself. As for Thomas, Cuff says he knows nothing about him further than that he seemed to be the friend of men who were known as crooks.

Thomas was arraigned in the Centre Street Police Court yesterday by Detective Sergeants Vallely and O'Connell. They asked that he be held to await the arrival of requisition papers from Lansing, Mich., and Magistrate Simms held him for thirty days in $5,000 ball. Requisition papers for Peters were made out yesterday, and the detectives started for Chicago at once to bring him here.

WANTED THE LIGHT TURNED DOWN. Charles H. Clark's Unusual Request Started

Charles H. Clark, who said he was a paper-box anufacturer, went into Morello's restaurant in West Twenty-ninth street at 10 o'clock last light with a woman, and, after having several bottles of wine, asked Head Walter Vinini to turn down the gas.

He said that the light hurt his eyes. Vinini

He said that the light hurt his eyes. Vinini refused to comply with the request because, he said, it was against the rules of the house. Thereupon an argument ensued concerning the ethics of restaurant life.

Finally Clark became excited and rose from his chair. Vinini pushed him hack, and Clark nunched him in the nose. Immediately there was an uprear in the restaurant, and some one called a policeman. Clark was arrested and taken to the West Thirtieth street station.

To the Sergeant hy said that the arrest was an outrage, as he had not punched the waiter until the waiter assaulted him. Moreover, he said, Vinini insulted the woman who was with him. Clark was locked up.

OPEN IT AGAIN IF HE DID. On Oct. 28 He Left $10,000 Worth of Bonds in It and in the Morning They Were Gone-So Was Kelly's New Cost-The Bonds Found in all Deserted House,

Lowis D. Kelly is a wealthy farmer who lives about two miles north of Woodbridge, N. J., on the Rahway road. When Mr. Kelly regred on the night of Wednesday, Oct. 28, he was pos-sessed of about $10,000 worth of bonds and other secureties, which were kept in a small iron safe in the dining room. About noon of the following day it was discovered that the safe had been rifled, and that all the bonds and securities had been taken from it. There was no clue to the thief. Last Wednesday some children found the bonds in a deserted house, known as the Getchel place, about a mile north of where Mr. Kelly lives. There is still no clue to the thief, and the farmer isn't taking a lot of trouble to find a

The reason why Mr. Kelly isn't overanxious to find out who robbed him is that he doesn't care to have the details of the robbery come out. There are other stories he would much rather tell than that about the ease with which somebody broke into his house and stole.

The Kelly house is a fine three-story frame building. It faces toward the east, and is sur-rounded by spacious and well-kept grounds, A broad plazza extends along the entire front of the house and part of the south side. From the western end of the plazza is door opening into the dining room. Just inside this door is a little old-rashioned fron safe, about two feet high and eighteen inches wide. To lock the safe involves the turning of a key. To unlock it and open the door involves the use of a hammer, a crowbar, and the expenditure of several hours' work, because the door is out of order, and has been for several years. The southern end of the dining room terminates in a large bay window, of which the ledge can easily be reached from the ground. The safe is but a few feet from the bay window.

When Mr. Kelly's father died, some time ago, he left a large estate, of which Mr. Kelly and his brother were the executors under the will. The bonds and securities which were stolen belonged to the estate. On the night of Oct. 28, Mr. Kelly's brother called at the house for the purpose of looking over the securities. After he had been served, Lewis Kelly went to the safe and brought out the securities, and the brothers spent a good part of the evening looking them spent a good part of the evening looking them over. About 10 o'clock the work of inspection was completed, and the brother prepared to take his departure.

Lewis Kelly gathered up the securities, put them into a tin box, and but the box back in the safe, being careful not quite to close the safe door, remembering the job he had in opening it the last time it was closed. The brother, who had been watching the proceedings, said:

"Why don't you close that door, Lewis, and lock it."

"We've been robbed; that's what!" Kelly fairly shouted.

The women shrieked and jumped upon chairs. Kelly made for the safe. Opening it, he found that the box containing the securities was gone.

"Just as lexpected," he cried.

"Every one of them bonds is gone. Why didn't somebody lock that safe last night? Why didn't somebody lock that safe last night? Why wasn't the windows locked? Wny didn't we have a burglar siarm?"

Kelly then went out into the garden. There were footprints usinily visible beneath the bow window and all around it. There were also heel prints on the window ledge. The disappearance of the coat and bonds had been seconnted for.

The Kellys decided that they wouldn't say much about the robbery, and they didn't. Last Wedinesday, however, while the children of the district school, up the Rahway road, were playing hide and seek in the old Gitchel house, one of the older boys found a legal-looking raper with the name Kelly on it. Then he found some more, and thinking they might belong to the farmer he took them to him after school. They were municipal bonds of the village of Kahway. Kelly went to the house at once, and under some floor boards he found the box, with all the other bonds and securities intact. They had evidently been hidden there by the thief or thieves, to be called for later.

Mr. Kelly has found another strong box for his securities, and now that he has them all back he lan't saying much about how they were stolen. The story got out through the school children, and Mr. Kelly reluctantly furnished the details to a SUN reporter last night.

Father and Son Probably Drowned. Peter E. Massaker, a machinist, 45 years old, and his 10-year-old son, Peter E. Massaker, Jr., went out fishing on Friday on the East River. The father lived at 640 East 159th street, and the son, who was married, lived on 157th street, and between Courtlandt and Melrose avenues. Yes-terday their boat was found bottom side up off Riker's Island. It is supposed that the Mas-sakers were drowned.
